SO YOU KIDS DID TAKE THAT COAT FROM THE HOTEL, DID YOU? HMM... I WAS SUPPOSED TO BRING YOU IN, BUT IF I WERE TO LOOK THE OTHER WAY NOW, YOU MIGHT DISAPPEAR AND YOU MIGHT FIND THIS MAN YOU GAVE THE COAT TO!

I KNEW THERE WAS SOMETHING FUNNY ABOUT THAT GUY!

WELL, HE CHECKED OUT OF HIS HOTEL, JUST LIKE THE OFFICER SAID! HOW CAN WE EVER HOPE TO FIND HIM NOW?

LET'S GO ASK THAT PHOTOGRAPHER! MAYBE HE KNOWS!

I THINK WE FOUND YOUR JINX! THIS HERMIT HAD A CAVE BELOW HERE WITH A SECRET PASSAGE LEADING RIGHT UP TO THE CAMP! WE CAUGHT HIM JUST AS HE WAS ABOUT TO BLOW UP THE CAMP!

HERMIT! THAT'S NO HERMIT! THAT MY FORMER PARTNER, JOHN FERRIS!

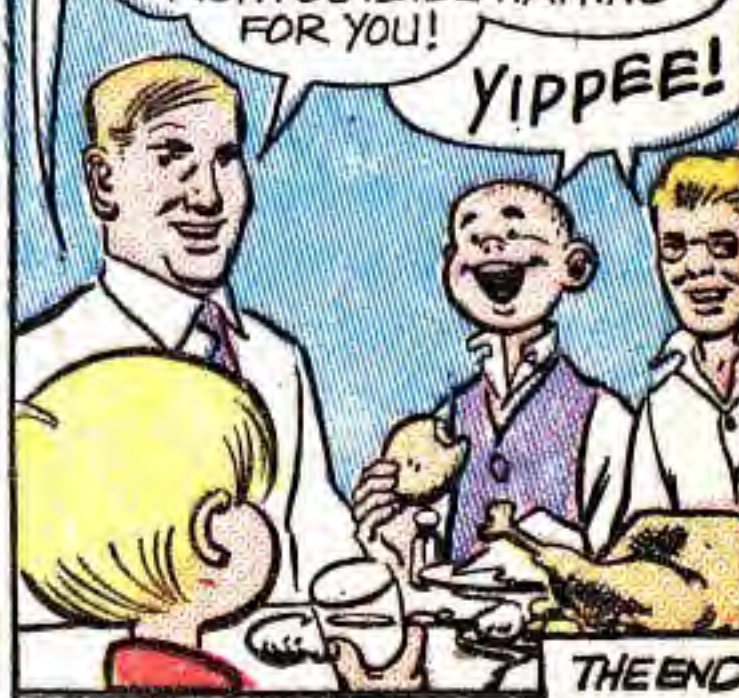

WHEN I FOUND FERRIS HAD BEEN SYSTEMATICALLY DOCTORING THE BOOKS AND STEALING THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS, I COULD HAVE HAD HIM ARRESTED! BUT INSTEAD I GAVE HIM A BREAK AND BOUGHT HIM OUT! HE THREATENED ME, BUT I THOUGHT IT WAS A BLUFF!

IT WASN'T A BLUFF! I'VE WRECKED YOUR TRUCKS, SABOTAGED YOUR EQUIPMENT, AND I'D HAVE FINISHED YOU OFF...YOU AND THE CAMP...IF IT HADN'T BEEN FOR THOSE NOSY KIDS BARGING IN!

HE'S HAD ALL THE BREAKS HE'S GOING TO GET! THIS TIME HE FACES THE MUSIC!

IT GETS AROUND

ONE FOR THE BOOKS

During the city library's vacation program during the summer of 1955, an eleven year old boy carried off top honors in Providence, Rhode Island. He read 66 books in 66 days and won first prize in the contest. His award of all things was a book.

* * *

GENIUS GONE ASTRAY

The parents of a nine year old prodigy in Roxbury, Mass., have concluded that sometimes too much knowledge can prove to be an expense. Their son speaks twelve languages fluently, including Sanskrit and Chinese and such common place books as H. G. Wells "Outline of History," is duck soup for him. The young genius refused to attend school because he didn't find it "intellectually stimulating," but unfortunately a law in Roxbury requires 9 year old boys to attend school or be fined. After the parents had been fined $4.00 the young scholar decided that attending classes would be the best alternative.

GOING ROUND IN CIRCLES

A young father who had been left to babysit with his six year old son, decided to take the boy to the Palisades Amusement Park for the day. The child chose a ride on the merry-go-round as his first treat. When the ride was over, the child refused to get off. He howled so loud that his father didn't insist. To satisfy the boy, it took 106 rides costing a total of $15.50.

* * *

GETTING HIS MONEY'S WORTH

A 13 year old youth of West Wickham, England, met a school-boy friend of his one day and bought a stamp for the sum of 14 cents. At a recent stamp exhibition the stamp was priced at $4,200. It was a King Edward VII, 10 shillings ($1.40) stamp overprinted with the word "I.R. Official." The young boy was overwhelmed by his good fortune, however, he said he would "think about it for the weekend" when asked if he wanted to sell the stamp.

* * *

TV WHIZ KID

At an age when most children are struggling with their readin' and writin', a 13 year old boy of Atherton, California, is concerned with other things besides school learning. At the age of four he graduated from light switches to constructing a galvanometer, a device that detects electrical current. At seven, it was radios, and he built a five tube receiver just by following a diagram. As an 11 year old sixth-grader, he was busy fixing his neighbors' TV sets. His parents therefore weren't too surprised when, in April, 1954, he enrolled in a three month color TV course. At the present time, with the aid of his parents financial backing and encouragement, the young boy has built his own color TV set, which is the pride and envy of everyone in his neighborhood.

GOING PLACES

Because he got mad and wanted to get away from it all, an eleven year old of Miami, Florida, hopped in the family car and drove off. He came back four and one-half hours later with 100 miles ticked off on the speedometer. Although he never had a driving lesson, the boy got the car back without a dent (August, 1955).

LOOK OUT FOR CASTOR

A handsome, romantic and "dangerous" robot is often in the habit of roaming through the halls of Foley High School in Minnesota, accompanied by his creator, a 17 year old junior student. The robot known as Castor the Great, was assembled from various pinball-machine parts and other pieces of junk, a task which required two months to complete. At the present time Castor can be made to walk, defend himself with a water gun, pick up paper, wink at girls, talk and react with fright by raising his hair. The total value of the project is $200, but the amount of fun the young creator can have with his robot is unlimited in human value.

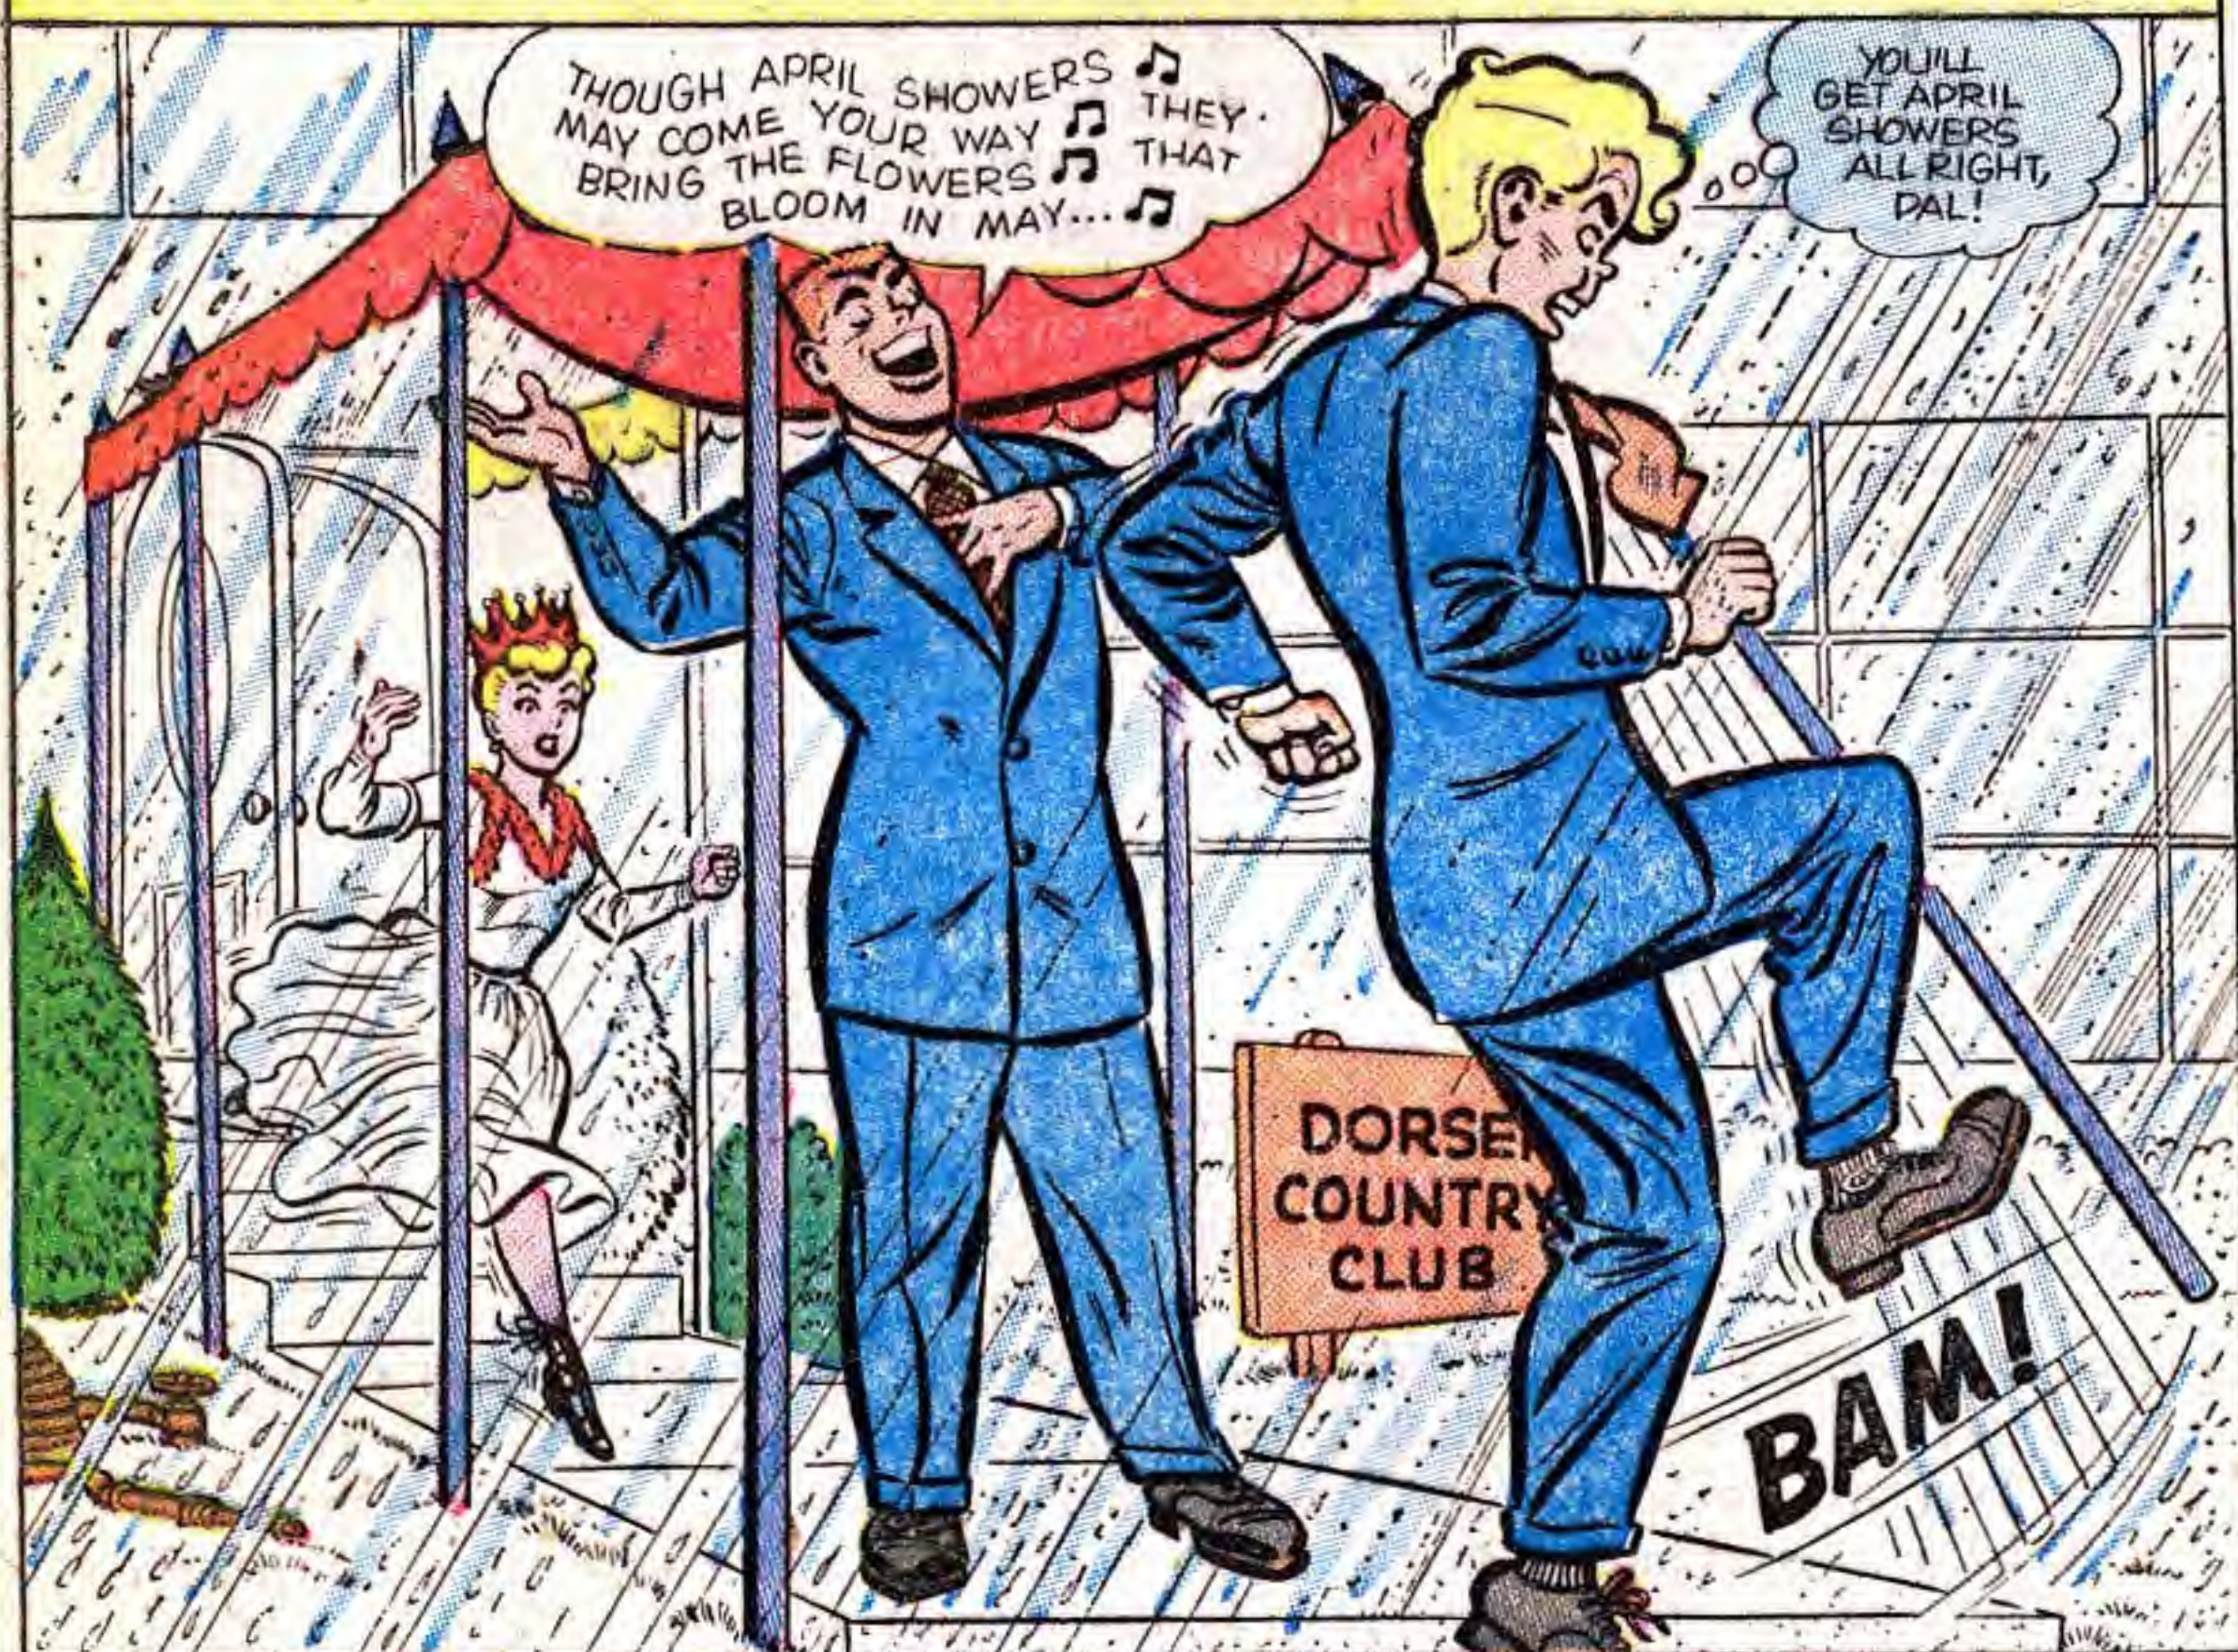

YOUTH IN HIGH GEAR

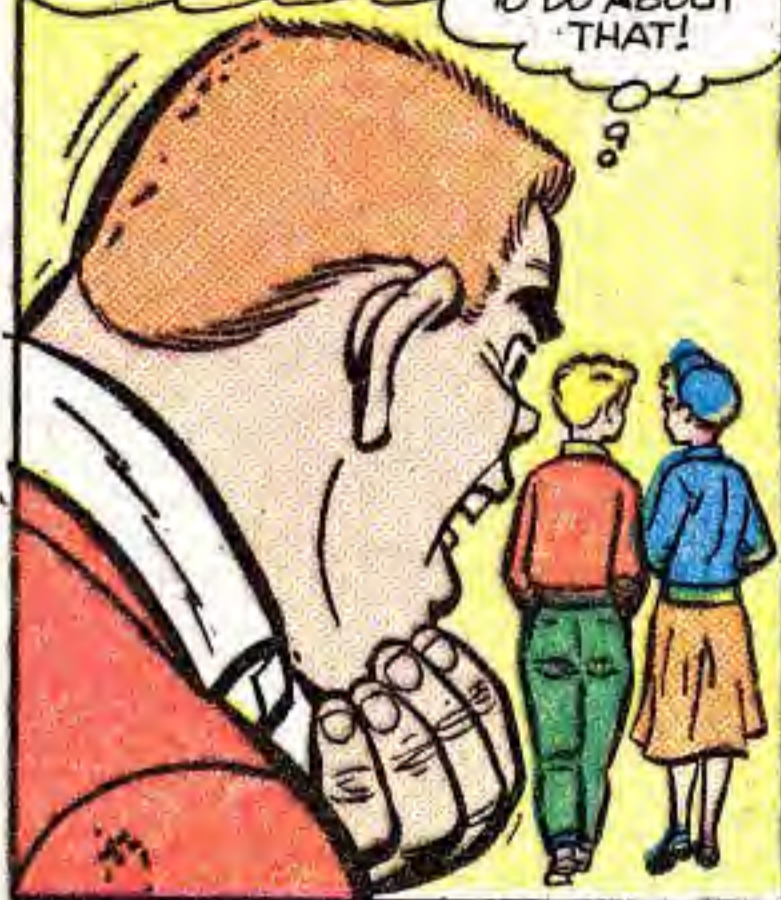

Youngsters of Phoenix, Arizona, are geared to the hazards of traffic and automobile driving, by attending classes at the Garfield School. The school gives courses for young boys and girls only, designed to teach them how to operate pedal-powered cars which they guide over a miniature traffic course on which actual traffic conditions are simulated. Infractions are penalized by tickets and offenders must face a student court. Some 500 children take the course each year to help make them safe adult drivers.
